"I like the story so far. One of the biggest things I like is that you can customize your character like in any RPG. You even get to customize your field of view and how your character looks. Also, I like that there's a lot of customization options for your equipment. The graphics are some of the most beautiful I've seen on the PS3. Overall, I think this is a great game and I would recommend it." "I just finished the game and I had a blast. I loved the cutscenes, the graphics and how the game plays. I also like how the character customization allows you to become the hero you want to be, so no more "I wanna be that guy." The story is intriguing and I am already hooked. The one negative that I have is that the combat is a little repetitive. At least that was my experience. Also, I like that the game has a multiplayer. I think that it's very solid and definitely gives the game a different aspect than others. I'd definitely recommend it." "The game is absolutely gorgeous in every way possible. If you're into top notch presentation and awesome combat, then this is the game for you. Very long, but incredibly fun combat. The story is pretty alright, and the music is very well done. You can play this game with a bunch of friends, and it's very flexible. It's a really great game to play around with." "I've only been able to play this game for a couple days now, but so far it is super awesome. I love the story, I love the characters, I love the combat system, I love the gameplay, I love the exploration... My only complaint is that after you beat the game, you start off on level 3 with no character customization. That's a bit of a bummer." "This game is absolutely gorgeous. It has a pretty good story, too. Combat is very fun, and the world is vast. I give this game an A." "I haven't played this game for a while, but I still love it. It's a well designed combat game that I love exploring. I love how you can customize how your character looks and fight, and I love the replay value aspect. I think this game is great!" "I love this game, I love the fighting mechanics. I love the game world and the graphics. I love that I can create my own characters and customize their appearance and look Elden Ring is available to play on Steam at the link below for PC (Windows), Mac, Linux, and PS4. Running the beta test and the author's survey for the Steam version, a summary of the results are as follows. ■

I did not find enough situations (4 of 60). My difficulty level was normal or higher. ■

At the beginning of the game, my level of frustration was high. ■

At the beginning of the game, my desired amount of piety (50) and extra money (0) was too high. ■

At the beginning of the game, my party members (7) was too few. ■

I felt that the number of enemy waves was too low. ■

I felt that it would be annoying if I died in non-turn battle events. ■

The level of difficulty settings was too hard, and I could not participate in PvP battles. ■

Did not understand the cross-linking of story with multiplayer well enough. ■

The lighting and field of battle were too gloomy. ■

I did not understand how to determine the areas of the battle field. ■

I did not find the skill improvement program clear or the level of rewards for completing the tasks. ■

There was no balance between story and battle. ■

The protagonist was more suitable for a female character. ■

The voice of the male character was unsuitable. ■

It was difficult to distinguish which character was the current ally, or an NPC.

Source by: Jonathan ShayQ: How to get running version number of Service Fabric I'm trying to get the current version number of a Windows Service Fabric Application I have running on a .Net Core Service Fabric Application. The service fabric application documentation has an.html example of how to get the version number. The code looks like this:

static void Main(string[] args) { var version = ClusterUtility.GetApplicationVersionAsync("FabServ ice").Result; } But when I try to run this code, I get a `NullReferenceException` when the `Result` property is called. I can confirm that the cluster is indeed running because it is what I am currently logged into. So how can I get the running version number from my .Net Core Service Fabric Application? A: I'm not sure that there's an API for doing this today, but I suspect that it would be similar to this: `var sfCluster = ServiceFabricCluster.GetCurrent(); var version = string.Join(".", new[] { sfCluster.GetClusterVersionString(), System.Reflection.Assembly.GetExecutingAssembly().GetName().Version });` Q: Angular Material 4 `mdDialog` What would be the appropriate way to open an `mdDialog` from an angular component? I have a dialog box which has a button to create a new task that opens a modal. The button does not work. HTML code: `add` TS code: `showPopup()` {
