I'm a huge console fanboy, so I was extremely interested to see what the Elden Ring would be like, but unfortunately the game isn't as good as I was expecting it to be. The graphics aren't that good for a game, so I can't imagine what the PC version will look like. I played on PC a bit and couldn't keep up with the game speed while simultaneously having to dodge too many enemies so it was a bit difficult for me to play like that. The controls were a bit awkward also, so it's not one that I would recommend to more casual gamers. But if you have an interest in the game or are a hardcore fanboy I would recommend you take a look at the game, especially if you have friends that you could play it with. I'm just not really sure how to feel about this game. I was extremely disappointed by it. I had high hopes for this game, but it is nothing more than a shallow action RPG that should have been a DS game. If you want to play a full length RPG then I would recommend you go buy Legend of Dragoon and Dragon Quest or something like that. Elden Ring should probably be done on the DS though. Q: Git checkout in an Android project I am making an android application and I have to do remote commits. All I do is go in the directory of the source code using the terminal (and do a "git clone") and after that I execute my app, and from there I receive no errors. The problem occurs when I want to push my commits to the server. There is a problem when I go into the directory "Git Bash" and try to execute git push, but I receive the error: Could not parse project's.gitattributes file Do anyone know how I can solve this problem? A: I just deleted the file Git.conf in the project and it works for me.

A while back, I organized and ran a domino league on someone's FB page. It was well attended and the friendship I made in my year being an organizer was not just seen, but it was felt. People could keep in touch and stay in touch. Friendships, or what could have been friendships were made. All of this while I was under my usual level of consciousness. I was not even aware of the opportunities I was giving people, no one told me, no one thought of me. I also started developing an interest in meditation and an interest in metaphysical studies. This all happened after this breakthrough with my work with the less fortunate. All of a sudden, I was interested in realigning my life and I knew what I wanted to do. I knew that I had to start taking care of my own self. I stumbled into an opportunity to start helping people at an acquaintance's place of worship. It was a great offer. I ended up running a not-for-profit organization, did some soul searching, and also figured out I was healing and growing. Things I am grateful for: I am grateful for the support I have received from fellow friends, colleagues and subordinates. I am grateful for the path I have walked, because what I know now would not have been possible if I had not walked that path. I am grateful for the lessons I have learned and a lot of life experiences I have had, because I can use them to contribute to the lives of others. I feel like I have been reborn and I am grateful that I have a fresh start. I am grateful for my spiritual awakening, I have learned to love myself and in that process, I have learned to love others. I am grateful for my spiritual journey and the friends I have made along the way. My intention is to share some of my writings and other information I have found out about
