crack (Y)The present invention relates to a method and apparatus for a divided communication channel memory, and more particularly, to such a memory for enabling selective interfacing with two or more independently operating memory units sharing a common channel. It has long been known to provide a master/slave communication channel memory wherein the master is called upon to address one of a plurality of slave memory units. An example of such a memory is found in U.S. Pat. No. 3,950,794 to Perino. While the Perino patent illustrates a memory suitable for interfacing with multiple master/slave communication channels, the memory is not capable of selective interfacing with two or more independently

operating memory units
and is subject
