Field of the Invention This invention relates to a gate driving circuit, and more particularly to a gate driving circuit of a display panel that can be applied to a gate driver of a liquid crystal display panel. 2. Description of the Related Art FIG. 1 is a schematic circuit diagram of a prior art display panel. The display panel includes a display area and a border area. The border area includes a plurality of scan lines 11 and a plurality of signal lines 12. The scan lines 11 are connected with a scan driving circuit 13, and the signal lines 12 are connected with a signal driving circuit 14. In the display panel, the scan lines 11 and the signal lines 12 are arranged in an array, and a portion of the signal lines 12 are connected with the signal driving circuit 14, so that data signals can be transmitted to pixels in the display area via the signal lines 12 when a scan signal is provided from the scan lines 11. FIG. 2 is a schematic circuit diagram of a gate driving circuit of the prior art display panel. The gate driving circuit includes a plurality of input buffers 21, a plurality of scan driving units 22 and a plurality of output buffers 23. The output buffers 23 output scan signals to the scan lines 11. In FIG. 2, each of the input buffers 21 receives a corresponding scan signal from a scan line 11, and transfers the scan signal to a scan driving unit 22. The scan driving units 22 output signals corresponding to the scan signals to the output buffers 23, respectively. In this way, the display panel of FIG. 1 can perform a display function. However, in the prior art display panel of FIG. 1, when data signals are not provided to the signal driving circuit 14 via the signal lines 12, the signal driving circuit 14 cannot transmit a scan signal to the scan lines 11. As a result, when the display panel of FIG. 1 is a liquid crystal display panel, the display panel will stop displaying images. Hence, a display panel that can overcome this problem is needed. Israeli researchers have developed an instrument that combines rapid DNA profiling and geospatial mapping to identify suspects within hours after a crime has been committed. The new system, called the Forensic Map, can be deployed on foot, and once active, d0c515b9f4

The present invention is directed to the field of medical devices and more particularly the present invention is directed to using a resilient material to generate a compression wave in the heart to aid in treating certain medical conditions. Certain medical conditions are treated by the application of a compression wave in the heart. The wave is commonly generated in the heart by inserting into a natural chamber of the heart, a catheter of appropriate diameter to cause the compression wave to travel throughout the chambers. When the compression wave is released, the wave is converted to a pressure pulse which helps to stimulate increased cardiac function. This may occur when a heart is treated by a natural orifice technique where the wave is released in the abdominal area. However, other devices, such as the device of the present invention are positioned in the chambers of the heart so that the wave is applied to the heart. Calendar View All Calendars is the default.
