The future is a time of great conflict, for humanity. The Earth's resources are exhausted, and even the planets beyond it are in a very delicate place. Earth is finally on the brink of destroying itself, and there's nothing we can do to stop it.

Meanwhile space resources are also dwindling, and the Moon is rapidly being out-stripped by other, more enterprising, species. Faced with the prospect of their very existence being a flash in the pan, the human race has begun fleeing their fragile blue planet, with most of their population having already left for the stars. Earth's oceans have vanished, and the air has become unbreathable. The inner planets have long since been abandoned. The Moon is now the only home we have, but our tiny population are thriving on the resource-rich Moon. But the Moon is not the most inviting planet, and in time our spacefaring ancestors will be faced with settling the system, either conquering the planets for resources and building their own colonies on worlds with breathable air, or seeking their fortune across the stars in a bid to win more resources and create new colonies. As the system settlers begin to forge new lives they will build new space stations, colonise planetary surfaces and create the infrastructure of a massive interplanetary society. And so humanity would have finally found itself. The game is set in a universe where the resources of the Moon are all that sustain humanity.

With the limited resources available, the remaining humans struggle to build intergalactic civilizations and stave off the dangers of the universe. Players start out unarmed and with minimal resources and will need to build up a space station and find other players to accompany them on their journey across the stars. Each settlement will consist of the basic needs of shelter, food and air. As players develop technology they will be able to extract resources from the planets and build their own space stations. Players will be able to build up an infrastructure on their space stations, to serve the needs of their colonists. Players will need to defend their settlements and planetary bodies from hostile groups and alien forces. Players will be able to explore the immense universe through the use of a star map. Players will be able to select their own factions from a number of different groups, each with their own agenda and history. Players will be able to colonize new planets and control their own territories, as they travel across the universe. Players will be able to mine resources

My name is "Bertrand". I created Ragdoll because, well, it was fun to create. Ragdoll is a simple physics simulator of the absurd. Let's start from the beginning! The game is a 3D physics simulator. You have a ragdoll. A ragdoll is like a normal human who can move and be thrown around. You control him with the arrow keys. Your task is to get him to a new point. The goal. Is that, technically, really simple. When you move the ragdoll, the ragdoll will react to gravity. Gravity is what makes gravity. Thus, if the ragdoll is a real human, then when he's high in the air he will hit the ground as soon as he loses his grip with the ground. Anything can happen! But how do you play? The game works as follows: You have a ragdoll. Your ragdoll can move. The ragdoll can be thrown. When the ragdoll is thrown, he can hit the walls. There are walls. You can place obstacles in the game. And there are characters. Objects can be anything. It can be an obstacle. It can be something else. Well, it's not just an obstacle. The ragdoll can get tangled up. He can suffer injuries. He can make a fun little sound. Ragdoll is fun! In this game, you can launch your character anywhere, watching as his limbs dangle and hit all the obstacles. Goals? Tasks? Meaning? Not. Nothing limits you in the game. Choose any level and do what you want! Features Everything is dynamic! Even the game menu :D Realistic collision simulation Many cool levels Dynamic objects Random characters Detailed physics settings [optional] Freedom to experiment About This Game: My name is "Bertrand". Firebase Defence is a unique tower defense style game that delivers a whole new level of strategy. You build your defenses and defend them at all costs as the enemy launch the first salvo of "projectiles". If you are not careful you will be overwhelmed by enemy troops before you have time to get your defenses up and running. Your Firebase will need to be built in a manner to withstand the onslaught for as long as possible. You must think ahead of time, where to build and what units to use to the task. It's an effective defense game. DEFENCE, IS KEY! But if you run out of time, or ammo, or health... well, that will be the end of your Firebase. KEY FEATURES * Construction! - You can build where you want and how you want. You can even destroy what you want! * Different units with very different play styles - Using the right combination of your units is the key to a successful defence. * Manage ammunition - Different units uses different ammunition, you need to make sure they never run out. * A wide variety of different enemies - From small and almost harmless, to huge and dangerous that will level your Firebase to the ground if not dealt with. * Mission variety - Different missions require different strategies. * Survival mode - Unlockable extra mode that gets progressively more difficult. ABOUT TOWER DEFENCE By its nature, tower defense means defense. You can choose your weaponry, place your towers anywhere you wish. But you also have to think ahead and build your defences. You need to make sure you have sufficient units and ammunition to keep your fortress standing for as long as possible. Firebase Defence is no different. Your arsenal is your choice, but you need to watch your back too. You will have to make tough choices, your fortress will take the punishment, and if things get too rough on the front, you may need to play with your units and defenses. WORK IN PROGRESS We are still in the process of polishing all of our features and finishing up some content. But we hope you will like what we have already produced and expect more to arrive soon.
