The Tiger I is a German tank first in service in 1939. The later model was a lighter version for use in low ground. It was armed with a German 2cm KwK36 L/54 anti-tank gun that was mounted in a forward-facing turret. The Tiger I was designed to fight against the Panzer II and Panzer III of World War II, with a hull similar to the Panzer IV, but the turret was in the shape of a rounded teardrop, with a horizontal gun mantlet. This more comfortable shape could be rotated from side to side, allowing the turret to be used in either an "armoured" or "infantry" orientation. An armored suspension with horizontal sliding road wheels provided stability on rough terrain, and the suspension was made of two telescoping pieces to allow for better traversal while allowing the tracks to be used as a footing. This allowed the tank to be amphibious. The suspension design allowed the tracks to act as feet, which limited the weight of the tank, and allow for better movement and climbing on rough terrain. Tiger Tank 59 II SPG M1942A1 "Sturm Geschütz M1942 ": This tank was designed in 1942 as an improvement over the original Tiger I. It was lighter, had a larger turret, and had improved fire control systems. The tanks weight was reduced to under 27 tons. The new design used less steel, and had a thicker side armor to better withstand shell hits.The M1942 used a 75mm L/42 gun. The L/42 guns were a new design created for the Tiger Tank 59, and was a re-designed version of the L/42 gun used by the Tiger I. Due to the lighter weight of the tank, the 75mm L/42 was too large for the Tiger Tank 59, and a new gun design called the M42 was created for the tank. Tiger Tank 59 III SPG M43: The M43 (M43/42(M42) A1) was a German tank design from 1944 to 1945. It was designed for anti-tank missions, and had a larger turret, and was armed with an 80mm L/48 gun. The tank weighed about 28 tons, and was about 13 tons lighter than the Tiger Tank 59. The M43 was used in Combat support in the European and Eastern theater of war. ISM, ONE RACISM Henry Makow THE POST-AMERICAN NETWORK. THE NEW WORLD ORDER with a $6-10 trillion endowment capital ($2 trillion from Henry M. Jackson foundation, Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Rockefellers, and Soros), *Source: CIJ DEC 2007 * The billion-dollar Zionist lobby in the US and Western Europe shapes policy and research, diverts money from Israel's enemies into its coffers, breeds a Zionist Intellectual Complex, and intimidates critics with intimidation tactics that range from excommunications and exile to character assassination. One target: Zionist academic David Hirson, author of the book, From Time Immemorial. The vocal and vociferous brand of post-Americanism was born of colonial anxieties, championed by the imperialist Braudettes and Solomons, many of them educated by the money power universities, who thought they knew best and most needed a global perspective. When the American Empire collapsed in the 1940s, the Braudettes and Solomons saw a coming into being of a new globalist order that would have the world run by the Anglo-American global elite. Supported by an entrenched Zionist elite, their project did not fly in Soviet dominated countries. Hence, the descent into the post-Americanism age began after the collapse of the Soviet Union and the entrance of China into global economics — a breakdown of belief in a fixed set of rules for international commerce. The European presence, that abandoned India and adapted to industrialism, became the fallback argument of the new post-American globalists. Those who opposed the new system or were seen as putting the world at risk, were attacked. In the new situation, it was not enough to be simply intellectual. They had to become brave. An example is the campaign that led to Lee Bollinger's forced resignation as president of Columbia University — one of the most Jewish-dominated institutions in the US. The idea was to make a good example of Bollinger who was known for promoting causes that he felt would better the world such as Palestinian rights and Israel's victims. (note: the Columbia University annual fund totals $11 billion/year.) In this climate, those who questioned the orthodox opinions of the post-Americas, like the Braudettes and the Solomons, who defined American exceptionalism, were considered if not good at least naïve. In short, they were anti-Americans. Now,
