Evergreensocialscienceguideclass10downloadpdf 13:52 Thai Green Curry Ratatouille Thai Green Curry Ratatouille Thai Green Curry Ratatouille From: These are American-made hemp seeds. The people that make hemp seeds eat them the same way as we do: fried, dry, and in omelettes. But the vast majority of hemp seeds sold today, even organic, are produced through mass-scale farming. That's what makes them unsuitable for human consumption. Even though they can contain high amounts of the most nutrient-rich part of the hemp plant from which they're pressed, the oil itself is low in Omega-3 and high in toxic chemicals. Consequently, you want to buy hemp food or hemp oil that benefits your health, that you can trust, and where the nutrient-rich hemp oil isn't heavily treated. If you want to buy CBD oil, you need to be very careful. There

Pat. No. 3,730,868 discloses a method of making an aqueous solution of imidazole by treatment of imidazole with an alkali metal hydroxide in an amount of from 10 to 75% by weight of the imidazole. U.S. Pat. No. 3,846,484 discloses a method of stabilizing an aqueous solution of an organic base or nitrogen compound, including imidazole, by contacting the solution with an alkaline earth metal hydroxide, a zinc compound, a nickel compound, a lead compound, a tin compound, a cerium compound, a fluorine compound, an antimony compound, a barium compound, and a copper compound. U.S. Pat. No. 4,186,239 discloses that imidazole and compounds of imidazole are useful as herbicides and growth regulants.

Prior art aqueous solutions of imidazole are unstable because the imidazole forms a complex with the alkali metal ion and, thus, immediately undergoes some type of chemical change.

U.S. Pat. No. 4,446,191 discloses a method of making aqueous imidazole solutions that are characterized by a desirably short shelf life by producing such solutions with a buffer system that stabilizes such solutions by the replacement of substantial amounts of alkali metal ions with less stable ionic species, such as the alkali metal hydroxide ion, which complex with the imidazole to prevent undesired degradation. U.S. Pat. No. 4,466,924 discloses imidazole compositions including, for example, imidazole and nonaqueous solvents such as certain glycol ethers. U.S. Pat. No. 4,948,694 discloses aqueous solutions of imidazole and buffered imidazole containing a strong buffer such as sodium hydrogen phosphate and additional agents such as propylene glycol and dipropylene glycol. U.S. Pat.
