THE ELDEN RING STORY CELENIA (PERFIDIOUS AND REFRAINED) Celenia raises her left hand, drawing a great sword from her throat. The blood drips onto the sand and winds blow it away. Previously, there was a young sorceress by the name of Celenia. She wielded the power to bend the will of others. Her friends and allies stood by her side, but those closest to her worried that one day she would meet the same fate that befell her evil aunt. THE ELDEN RING WORLD LUGU LUGU -PRODIGAL SLUM Lugu is the largest part of a city inhabited by the slum population. There is no welfare or support system for the people living there. Most of them spend all their time fighting for food, safety, and goods. The city is inhabited by a large number of criminal organizations such as thieves, prostitutes, and even drug dealing syndicates. There are those that live in the slum as respectable citizens. Among them are the powerful warriors of the Elden Rings. Those warriors are known as the Cho Hon, and they fight to protect the people living in the slum. LUGU -ASLUM As Lugu has grown the population has also increased. While the criminal organizations thrive in the streets, the respectable citizens struggle to make ends meet and raise their children. --- MORDRING AND ABDEY MORDRING Mordring is the capital of a small kingdom. Even though the city has a strong defensive system and a fearsome population, the people of Mordring you are, was there, and that you've never seen anything like it before in your life. Like you I have heard voices and seen things and touched them, and felt things. Like I told you, I have awoken on more than one occasion, and it's gotten so bad that I can't even stand myself. I am on the verge of being a monster, and there is something I have to do for the sake of others and myself." "All the same to me, I've heard about a place called Asolo, it's beyond the borders of our world. An island that seems to be a concrete bowl in an endless sea. A world where it is difficult to tell which day is which. A world where the language is so complex that you can have a complete conversation without uttering a single word. The base of which lies hidden at the very bottom of a volcano. Where it takes a week to get there, and half a lifetime to get back again. In any event, it is said that this is a world that was ruled by an incredible yet ancient race of beings who were the first people on the earth. Or thereabouts." "The people of Asolo built a fortress, and in it they guarded all their greatest treasures. Once a year, the great leaders of the city, honored by their people, would travel to the top of the volcano to offer up their animals for sacrifice. And then, on the 15th day of the new year, they would return with the treasure from the volcano. If you help me, you can return the treasure to the people of Asolo. If not, well, they'll get some other people to do it, and it will be far worse for them." "I've been to Asolo on more than one occasion, and I have found that it's a world where time is neither sped up nor slowed down. Also, where the days and nights are so long that night becomes day, and day becomes night, and that the day is experienced as being precisely the same as the night. And if that's not enough, in Asolo, time is backwards. It begins again as soon as it ends." "It's said that on the day that the great leaders return with the treasure to the people of Asolo, they will make the laws of the land that will be obeyed for the next bff6bb2d33

>The Municipal Workers Union East, along with other small unions, had planned on state-run negotiations to determine the fate of public employees. But after its legal challenge to a local budget override failed, union leaders changed their strategy and initiated strike negotiations. On Aug. 19, the General Municipal Employees Association — of which the East union is a division — issued a “notice of intent” to strike, notifying top-level officials in city hall that it would walk off the job if necessary to win contract negotiations. As of Tuesday evening, the strike had not taken place. Union representatives say that wages and benefits remain at contract levels, but that the sides will continue negotiations. “We don't want anyone to think that we went away without a fight,” said Maureen O’Brien, a lawyer for the Eastunion and an organizer of the strike preparations. “It's important to take a shot at this and see what happens.” Just last month, a compromise deal — called a “funding certificate” — was hammered out to present a watered-down version of the city's budget for the next fiscal year. Tougher cuts were made in each department, and nearly $30 million in city services were cut in return for a decrease in the public employee payroll by 5 percent. On Monday, Florida's Supreme Court in a 4-2 ruling downgraded that budget. The ruling could lead to another round of budget cuts. Kejal Fernando-Ripeiro, co-chair of the GMA union, said the Supreme Court's decision would stoke disagreements over the department cuts. It meant that only the two members of the Supreme Court who were members of the union are still aligned with the union on the budget, and two members of the division's bargaining committee are now “not on the same page,” he said. Mr. Fernando-Ripeiro said he will speak with union leadership in the following weeks about whether and how to proceed. If mediation is ordered, union leaders don't intend to strike yet. “We are in a position where we are at the table talking to them,” he said. Lawyers for
