Three-dimensional model of structure and distribution of the subcellular components of living human erythrocytes. Three-dimensional model of the structure and distribution of the major subcellular organelles of the human erythrocyte is presented. The model is based on the electron microscopical results obtained in various laboratories. The surfaces of erythrocyte membrane were described by a distribution of elliptical elements (microdomains). The microdomains were assumed to be attached to specific proteins and were distributed throughout the erythrocyte membrane. In resting erythrocytes, the level of $Ca2+$ and $Mg2+$ in the cytoplasm was modelled as a distributed gradient. In this paper we present an attempt to visualize the subcellular structures by distribution of these and other elements in the membrane system as in our computer model.Q: re: Unbounded ring R with $R^2=0$ Let R be a ring such that $R^2=0$. (i.e. R is not a direct sum of two non-zero submodules) Prove that R is a chain ring. If R is a chain ring, then show that $R^2=0$ implies $R=0$. My attempt to (1) Let R be a chain ring and let x be in R. It is known that x is a union of two elements y and z, where y, z is a maximal and a minimal ideal respectively. Hence, let us try to prove that y and z are unique. If x is a union of y and z, then $y\subset x$ and $z\subset x$, and $R^2=0$ implies that $y\times z=0$. It follows that $z\subset y$ or $y\subset z$. If $z\subset y$, then $z=y$, which contradicts the assumption that y, z is a maximal and a minimal ideal. If $y\subset z$, then $y=z$. Thus, $x=y$ and $z=x$. This proves that y and z are unique. Hence, $R^$

Q: Trying to map a json object to list of classes I am using Newtonsoft.Json to deserialize the Json so that I have a list of List objects that contains more complicated objects of other type(like List). When I use JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(json), it works fine. When I use json.JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(json), it throws an error Cannot convert from 'System.Collections.Generic.List' to '_MyClass'. I also tried changing the "type" property to "object" and it throws the same error. var myClass = JsonConvert.DeserializeObject>(myObject); While I know I can create a new List and populate it and that's fine. I just want to know what causes this error and what is the good way of converting a json object to a list of custom class. A: You can't convert a JArray into a MyClass. A JArray can contain objects of any type. A MyClass can only contain instances of MyClass. That's why you are getting the error. To fix this, simply change your class definition to accept an IEnumerable instead. public class MyClass { //... } public class MyClassCollection : IEnumerable { //... } Then, if your json is a MyClassCollection, JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(json); should be fine. If you really want to create a new list, you can do so, but you'll need to fill it with instances of MyClass, not with JArrays. // If json is a MyClassCollection then // var myClassList = JsonConvert.DeserializeObject>(json); // will work var myClassList = new List(); foreach (var jsonObject in json) { // Now you can add an instance of MyClass to the list, // even if it's in a JArray myClassList.Add(JsonCon
