Autosoft.com.intronero.concursandurbis.Check out a gallery of some of the many "Lost" posters that were passed around through the years. We've collected the most legendary ones that have survived from the series' first run. One of the more unusual items from "Lost" is the prize exhibit from the 2005 "Lost" TCAs. Among the many exhibits was a plane, a modified art car and many of the cast members' photos that had been taken throughout the series. Here we have a photo of two of the cast members that made their first appearances in the series. (Squints) As you can see, both cast members had their hair changed for the start of the season. One has bleached his hair blonde and the other is sporting a brown cap. The reason for the color change was unknown. In the photo, Jack appears to be studying Michael Emerson's left foot, whereas Kate is close to him on the left. Considering the vast age difference between the two, it made one wonder if there was an age gap between them or if they were cousins or acquaintances. Still, we saw them on the show together. The cast certainly had many touching moments and a lot of great stories. They shared things from their lives, which they spoke about in many interviews. What about you? Did you watch the series? Did you get a huge kick out of the posters? How many did you have? We'd love to hear your comments below. Lost is the story of two parents and their two children who are reported missing on a mysterious island where the TV series takes place. In the 'flash-sideways' timeline they're found alive and leave the island with an unknown "extended family."

I bought one of these a while ago and when I tried it out it was a bit of a tease. I'm writing this review now just because I've had it for a few months, and it's now got a bit of wear. The main problem with these cables is that they can't be used in pairs. Someone else has already pointed out that if you choose to use it in pairs you'll get 2-3dB drop. When I first bought them I decided that I wanted to record a DVD, so I wired 2 6d1f23a050
