An Altar In The World: A Geography Of Faith - aise fuckingi Wild Goose Publications I just received my CD of An Altar In The World: A Geography of Faith by Barbara Brown Taylor I purchased at Amazon. I'd be interested to know if anyone has read this book and if you have, did you get a good impression of the author. Map of Salvation by Stan Key From Wild Goose Publications This book has so many colorful maps, I bought four. I couldn't decide whether to read them all or just the first one that I opened. The maps are useful for all sorts of things, but it was a little hard to decide what the author was. Most of the essays in this book discuss the place of religion in the world, but there are a few about geography. Barbara Brown Taylor was born in Syracuse, New York. She earned a Master of Arts degree at the Harvard Divinity School, and earned her PhD at Union Theological Seminary. She has served on the faculties of Union Theological Seminary, Yale Divinity School, and Wesleyan University. There is a connection with God at the center of her Christian faith, which she traces to the Exodus story. …(excerpt. (Brown's) first volume of a study of geography, An Altar in the World: A Geography of Faith is. "Two-thirds of the world is made of water," she said.(The Church is not a geographical system; it is a people of God," says longtime RTS staffer and associate professor Rebecca D. Brown. The Celebration of Life: A Study of the Geography of Death from Find A Grave. I like the way the book is divided into two volumes. Volume I is devoted to people who died in the U.S. and does not include the Middle East and Russia.
